

Due to the Federal Court overruling the TRO and the subsequent chaos to UNE-P competition, VoIP will end up being the only true competition. This technology needs some time to mature before it becomes regulated. Yes, the states need the tax revenue and the USF needs to be funded, but perhaps a 2-3 year moratorium on VoIP regulation will give it time to cement itself as true, permanent competition to wireline communications.